UEFA General Secretary's Message

It is with a great deal of satisfaction that I welcome you to the 2012/13 UEFA Europa League. It is the fourth season of the competition and, in playing terms, the main question is whether any team can manage to break the Iberian monopoly which has been established in the previous three campaigns. In fact, five of the six clubs who have been involved in the finals played at Hamburg, Dublin and Bucharest have been from either Spain or Portugal, with London-based Fulham FC providing the exception to the rule. But the dominant feature from UEFA's standpoint has been the enormous impact of the new competition and the way it has become firmly established in such a short space of time. Last season produced some magnificent matches involving clubs of great European tradition and provided a spectacular demonstration of the quality of the UEFA Europa League.

This season marks the start of a new three-year cycle in UEFA's two main club competitions and this means that new sponsors – including a new presenting sponsor, a new sponsor and a new official supplier – have come on board to give the UEFA Europa League even greater impetus and international projection. At the same time, this demonstrates that, even in times of economic turbulence, European football retains its attractiveness and continues to play an important role in society.

The UEFA Europa League is growing as a thriving younger brother to the UEFA Champions League and this publication, combined with our continuous flow of online information, is now progressing along lines which are very similar to the premier club competition. A life-span of three years means that new records are ready for the taking. This publication lays the foundations on which the history of the UEFA Europa League can be built.

I look forward to another season of exciting football and I am sure that the clubs, the players, the coaches and the media will continue to enjoy the UEFA Europa League experience.

Gianni Infantino
UEFA General Secretary

INTRODUCTION

1 Introduction

As a reference work and a major item in the back-up service behind the competition, a "Statistics Handbook" has been published annually during the 20-year history of the UEFA Champions League. Now, with the UEFA Europa League consolidated as a 'younger brother' to the premier competition, a similar publication has been produced for the 2012/13 season and it is recognisably part of the same family. Content has been expanded and upgraded, while the format has been brought into line with the sister publication attached to UEFA's other major club competition.

It is edited, produced and distributed free of charge by UEFA in conjunction with the 48 participating clubs. UEFA reserves full copyright on the words in this Competition Guide. No text may be fully or partially reproduced without the express permission of UEFA. Nor may this publication be offered for sale.

This season all player profiles appear digitally on uefa.com in order to constantly update facts and figures. The UEFA Europa League Regulations can also be consulted by using this link:

http://www.uefa.com/MultimediaFiles/Download/Regulations/competitions/Regulations/01/80/06/31/1800631_DOWNLOAD.pdf

The competition format is the same as in previous years with the 48 clubs divided into 12 groups, with matches being played on Thursdays. During the 2012/13 campaign, the match schedule has been aligned with the matchweeks assigned to the UEFA Champions League. The two best-placed teams in each UEFA Europa League group qualify for the knockout stage, where they are joined by the eight teams who finish in third place in their UEFA Champions League groups. The four of these eight who have the best records are seeded in the draw for the Round of 32, along with the 12 UEFA Europa League group-winners. The 16 seeded teams earn the privilege of playing the second leg at home. In the Round of 32, teams from the same group or the same national association are kept apart, whereas from the Round of 16 onwards, the draws are completely free.

Appointments of referees are announced two days before matches via UEFA.com at approximately 11:00 CET. Each referee is accompanied by a team of two assistants; a 4th Official; and two additional assistant referees from the same country.

Additional general information, along with a guide to the different abbreviations and explanatory notes, can be found by checking the Press Kits on UEFA.com:

THE TROPHY

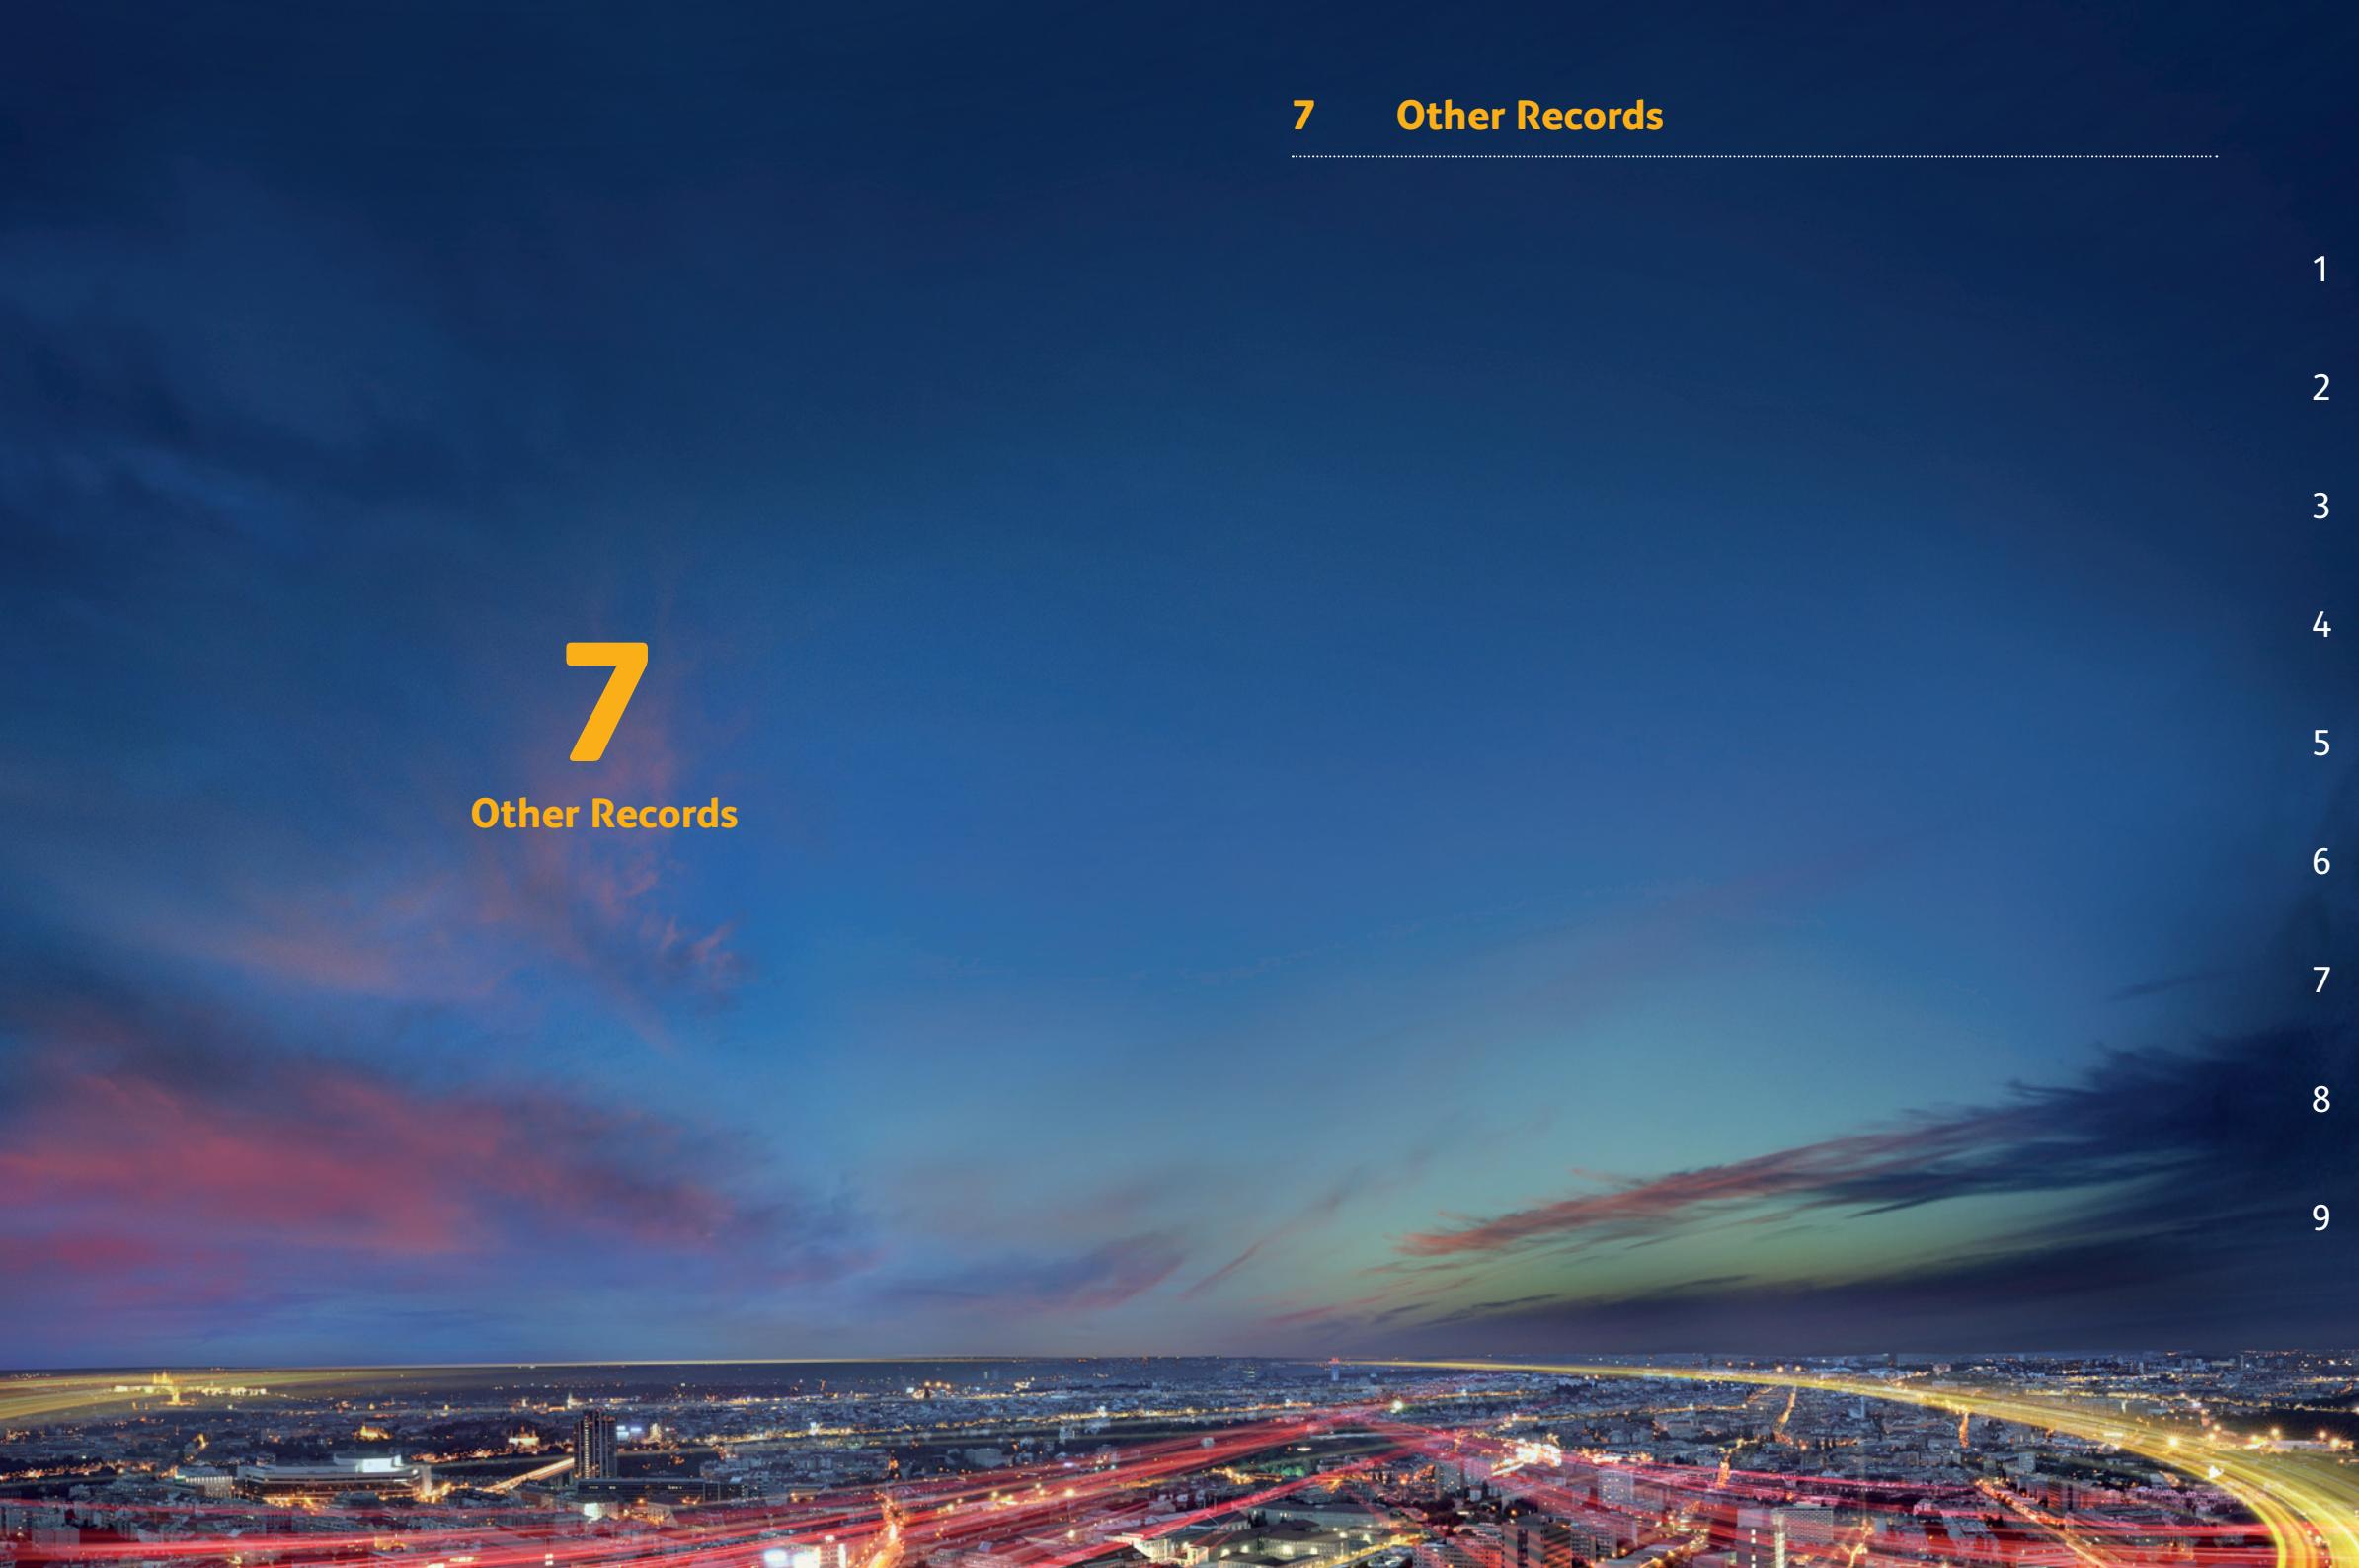

The UEFA Europa League trophy weighs 15kg, stands 65 cm high and is silver on a yellow marble plinth, which carries the names and flags of the UEFA Cup and UEFA Europa League winners.

It was designed by Swiss artist Alex W. Diggelmann and crafted by the Bertoni workshops in Milan for the 1972 final. Unusually, it has no handles, its beauty lying in its simplicity. Just above the plinth, a group of players seem to be jostling for the ball. In fact they are supporting the octagonal cup which is emblazoned with the UEFA emblem.

While the trophy itself has not changed during the shift from UEFA Cup to UEFA Europa League, the regulations pertaining to it have. Previously, the original UEFA Cup was kept by the winners for 11 months, before being ceremoniously handed over to the host city of the next final. The holders were also entitled to keep a four-fifths size replica to celebrate their achievement. Under the UEFA Europa League regulations, the original trophy stays with UEFA and a full-size replica is presented to the winning club to keep.

Only four captains have managed to lift the trophy more than once. The most recent was Sevilla FC captain Javi Navarro, who led his team to victory in Eindhoven in 2006 and Glasgow in 2007. The only other captain to get his hands on the trophy in successive seasons was another Spanish defender, Real Madrid CF skipper José Antonio Camacho, in 1985 and 1986. Berti Vogts took slightly longer to complete his double, winning the trophy with VfL Borussia Mönchengladbach in 1975 and 1979, while Emlyn Hughes was victorious at the 1973 and 1976 finals with Liverpool FC and FC Internazionale Milano's Giuseppe Bergomi held the trophy aloft in both 1991 and 1994.
