The Trophy

The UEFA Europa League trophy weighs 15kg, stands 65 cm high and is silver on a yellow marble plinth, which carries the names and flags of the UEFA Cup competition winners.

It was designed by Swiss artist Alex W. Diggelmann and crafted by the Bertoni workshops in Milan for the 1972 final. Unusually, it has no handles, its beauty lying in its simplicity. Just above the plinth, a group of players seem to be jostling for the ball. In fact they are supporting the octagonal cup which is emblazoned with the UEFA emblem.

While the trophy itself has not changed during the shift from UEFA Cup to UEFA Europa League, the regulations pertaining to it have. Previously, the original UEFA Cup was kept by the winners for 11 months, before being ceremoniously handed over to the host city of the next final. The holders were also entitled to keep a four-fifths size replica to celebrate their achievement. Under the UEFA Europa League regulations, the original trophy stays with UEFA and a full-size replica is presented to the winning club to keep. This new system also applies in the UEFA Champions League.

Only four captains have managed to lift the trophy more than once. The most recent was Sevilla FC captain Javi Navarro, who led his team to victory in Eindhoven in 2006 and Glasgow in 2007. The only other captain to get his hands on the trophy in successive seasons was another Spanish defender, Real Madrid CF skipper José Antonio Camacho, in 1985 and 1986. Berti Vogts took slightly longer to complete his double, winning the trophy with VfL Borussia Mönchengladbach in 1975 and 1979, while Emlyn Hughes was victorious at the 1973 and 1976 finals with Liverpool FC.

Hamburg Arena

The Hamburg Arena, home to Hamburger Sport-Verein, is built on the site of the old Volksparkstadion, which was totally demolished. Construction began in 1998 and the new stadium was inaugurated in 2000, when Germany beat Greece 2-0. During the building phase the old running track was removed and the pitch turned 90° to improve the viewing experience for fans.

During the season the stadium has a capacity of around 57,000 including standing areas, reduced to 51,500 for UEFA and FIFA matches. Since opening, average attendances have topped 50,000.

The Arena was one of 12 stadiums used at the 2006 FIFA World Cup, hosting five matches including the quarter-final between Italy and Ukraine.

The stadium is also a regular concert venue, playing host to the likes of the Rolling Stones and Bruce Springsteen.
