

Coaches

FC Barcelona v Manchester United FC: Josep Guardiola v Sir Alex Ferguson for the second time in three seasons. Prior to kick-off at Wembley, 'Pep' greets the coach he admires most in a meeting between two coaches with exceptionally high averages in the UEFA Champions League. All-time leader Sir Alex was bringing his total to 176 games in 16 seasons, yet even he was falling marginally short of Pep's tally of 38 matches in only three campaigns.

THE ELITE COACHES

The 18 coaches who made their UEFA Champions League debut during the 2010/11 campaign brought the total of newcomers to 31 in just two seasons – almost half of the number of participants. The re-match between FC Barcelona and Manchester United FC in the Wembley final inevitably provoked memories of 2009, when Sir Alex Ferguson, the undisputed leader of the all-time appearance chart with – at that time – 153 games to his credit – first crossed paths with 'Pep' Guardiola who, in his first season, became the youngest man to win the title as both player and coach.

The value of experience in the UEFA Champions League remains an interesting debating point. A review of the coaches who led teams into the knockout rounds of the 2010/11 campaign reveals that three of the sixteen were debutants: Massimiliano Allegri of AC Milan; Harry Redknapp of Tottenham Hotspur FC; and Unai Emery of Valencia CF. It has to be added that the departure of Claudio Ranieri between the two meetings with FC Shakhtar Donetsk allowed Vincenzo Montella to make his UEFA Champions League debut on the AS Roma bench. Of the four, the Englishman was the only one to progress into the quarter-finals.

A further question is to assess the value of playing experience. At Olympique de Marseille, Didier Deschamps was furthering a coaching c/v built on the foundations of 61 appearances in the competition as a player; Frank de Boer made his debut in the away win for AFC Ajax against AC Milan on the back of a playing career which included 81 UEFA Champions League appearances; and Thorsten Fink made his first coaching appearances at FC Basel 1893 after 51 matches as a player for another FCB – FC Bayern München.

Apart from the names already mentioned, the season's other debutants were Sorin Cartu and Alin Mintean at CFR 1907 Cluj; Jean Fernandez at AJ Auxerre; Eli Gutman at Hapoel Tel-Aviv FC; Pavel Hapal at Slovak debutants MŠK Žilina; Jorge Jesus at SL Benfica; Martin Jol at AFC Ajax; Valeri Karpin at FC Spartak Moskva; Nikos Nioplias at Panathinaikos FC; Domingos Pâciencia at SC Braga; Michel Preud'homme at FC Twente; and Aleksandar Stanojevic at FK Partizan. It is interesting to count how many start the new season on the same bench.

In terms of experience, as expressed in the number of UEFA Champions League appearances, Carlo Ancelotti's 10 games at Chelsea FC allowed him to become only the third coach to have passed the 100 mark, while José Mourinho's 11 games at Real Madrid CF allowed him to move up to 6th in the ranking; and FC Shakhtar Donetsk's run to the quarter-finals allowed Mircea Lucescu to break into the top ten. Once again, the leading seven coaches who were active in the UEFA Champions League last season were working outside their native country. However, the last word is to salute a man who was working in his own country and to wish Walter Smith of Rangers FC a very enjoyable retirement.
