Media Release – 73

Arrival of teams and public training sessions

Nyon – Portugal and Turkey will be the first participating teams to arrive at their team base camps for UEFA EURO 2008™. The two Group A teams will arrive in Neuchâtel and Geneva respectively on 1 June. The first Austrian-based teams to arrive, Poland (Bad Waltersdorf) and Italy (Baden bei Wien), will follow on 2 June. According to the UEFA EURO 2008™ Regulations, every team must arrive at their team base camp at least five days before their first match. On 5 June, Spain will be the last of the 16 nations to arrive at their Tyrol headquarters. The referees will check in to their hotel in Regensdorf near Zurich on 2 June.

Generally speaking, training sessions for the final round participants will be held behind closed doors. However, 14 of the 16 teams are following UEFA's recommendation by opening at least one training session to the public. Entry tickets for these sessions will be distributed or sold by the national associations in cooperation with the training centres involved.

Notes for editors:

- On pp. 2-3, you will find an overview of arrival dates, public training sessions and information about ticketing for those sessions, as communicated by the associations to Euro 2008 SA. NB: dates may be changed at short notice by the teams concerned.
- Training sessions open to the media will be announced in due course via the MIS (Media Information System) (further information about this will follow).
- The UEFA regulations stipulate that the first 15 minutes of a team's final training session the day before a match must be open to the media.
- An overview of the team base camps was published in Media Release 63 on 18 December 2007 (in the meantime two teams changed their training ground: Portugal trains in Stade Maladière, Neuchâtel; Romania in the AFG Arena, St. Gallen).
