European football united to protect minors

Representatives of associations, clubs, leagues and players agree resolution

The meeting of the Professional Football Strategy Council today in Nyon focused mainly on two subjects: the protection of minors and financial fair play.

All four groups (associations, clubs, leagues, and players) agreed on the principle that there should be no international transfers of minors (under-18 players) either into Europe or within Europe.

A resolution for the protection of young players and encouragement of youth development was ratified by all four representatives' groups. The text of this resolution can be found attached.

As regards financial fair play in UEFA club competitions, the creation of a new club financial control body at UEFA level was discussed, with a view to ensure a more consistent application of the existing UEFA Club Licensing System.

Discussions were also held regarding what types of financial fair play measures could be implemented in the medium-to-long term in European football; ranging from tighter application of the existing licensing system through to stricter cost control mechanisms to ensure that clubs compete with their own means.

Following the meeting, the UEFA President, Michel Platini, said:

"The question of minors is above all a moral and ethical issue – we have a duty to take concrete steps to protect young players and training clubs.

"I am delighted that the key stakeholders of the European football family have a common view on this major subject and I welcome the signature of this important resolution."

Protection of young players and encouragement of youth development

Resolution of the Professional Football Strategy Council

With regard to the protection of young players and encouragement of youth development, the Professional Football Strategy Council agrees that no international transfers (or first registration of non-nationals) of players under 18 into Europe or within Europe should be permitted.

This means in particular that the third exception foreseen today in Article 19, paragraph 2 b), of the FIFA Regulations for the Status and Transfer of Players, and which relates only to the EU/EEA, should be reviewed in order to guarantee that the same system regarding transfer bans of under-18 year old players applies both within and outside Europe and that this system is strictly monitored.
