UEFA EURO 2004™ referees announced

Twelve teams of referees selected for next summer in Portugal

The UEFA Referees Committee today announced the twelve teams of referees who will be officiating at the UEFA EURO 2004™ Final Tournament in Portugal next summer. Four 4th officials have also been named in addition to the twelve referees and the 24 assistant referees.

The teams of referees are appointed as 'trios' and it is the intention of the UEFA Referees Committee that they will be used as such at the Final Tournament. The teams are composed of referees and assistant referees from the same country and as a unit they have been active in UEFA competitions already, mainly in the UEFA Champions League, and therefore have a good understanding and experience of working together.

All 40 of the selected match officials for UEFA EURO 2004™ will attend a preparatory seminar in Portugal from 26 - 29 April 2004 at the same venue that will be used by the officials as their base during the tournament itself.

The full list of the 40 appointed match officials can be found on the following page.
