UEFA EURO 2004™ Player of the Tournament voting

EURO 2004™ All-Star Team also to be announced on Monday 05 July

On Monday 05 July at 11:00 am local Portuguese time, just one day after the Final of UEFA EURO 2004™, the UEFA Technical Study Group, led by UEFA's Technical Director Andy Roxburgh will announce the players that have been selected for the All-Star Squad, as well as the winner of the JVC UEFA EURO 2004™ Player of the Tournament.

The UEFA Technical Study Group will be represented at the press conference, at the International Media Centre in Lisbon, by Gérard Houllier and Andy Roxburgh who will announce the All-Star Squad made up of the best 23 players from UEFA EURO 2004™.

The introduction of the JVC UEFA EURO 2004™ Player of the Tournament means that for the first time ever the fans will also have a say in who wins this prestigious accolade. Their voting on euro2004.com, the official tournament website, will be considered by the UEFA Technical Committee when deciding the winner. The player with the most votes cast by fans will have one vote during the UEFA Technical Study Group deliberations after the Final on 04 July.

The Technical Study Group is made up of eight members; Roy Hodgson, Gérard Houllier, Anghel Iordanescu, György Mezey, Holger Osieck, Jozef Venglos, Berti Vogts and Andy Roxburgh. Each of these will cast one vote for the Player of the Tournament, and the ninth vote will come from euro2004.com.

The presentation of the JVC UEFA EURO 2004™ Player of the Tournament trophy itself will be arranged around the UEFA Football Gala in Monaco on August 26, the traditionally kick-off of the European football season.

UEFA's Technical Study Group has been attending the UEFA European Football Championship since 1996 and publishes their findings in a Technical Report issued after the end of the tournament.
