UEFA EURO 2008™ Final Round Draw

Requests for media accreditation can be made from today to 23 November

The draw for the Final Tournament of the UEFA European Football Championship™ 2006/08 will take place at the Culture and Convention Centre (KKL) in Lucerne, Switzerland on 2 December 2007 at 12:00 CET.

The hosts associations, Switzerland and Austria, are automatically qualified and will be allocated into position A1 and B1 respectively. The other 14 teams will be split into four pots. Pot 1 will comprise the reigning European champions Greece, if they qualify for the tournament, as well as the team with the highest coefficient. The other teams will then be placed in the three remaining pots based on the coefficient obtained in the qualifying competition for the 2006 FIFA World Cup and for UEFA EURO 2008™.

The draw starts with Pot 1 in order to fill the first position in each group.

A first ball is drawn from Pot 1 and the drawn team is placed into the first position of Group C. Thereafter, the second ball from Pot 1 is drawn and the respective team is placed into the first position of Group D.

The draw then continues with Pot 4 and ends with Pot 2.

- A ball is drawn from Pot 4 and placed into Group A. In order to determine the position of the team within the group and the fixtures order, a ball is drawn from Pot a (either A2, A3 or A4). Moving to Group B, another team is drawn from Pot 4. Once again, to determine the position of the team within the group, a ball is drawn from Pot b (either B2, B3 or B4). The same procedure is repeated for Groups C and D (in consecutive order) until all balls from Pot 4 have been drawn and positioned in each group.
- The same procedure is followed for Pot 3.
- Finally, the same procedure is followed for Pot 2.

The draw will be followed by a photo shoot on stage with the coaches of the qualified teams and UEFA President Michel Platini, and by a press conference for each of the four groups.
