Match background

- Sweden will be assured of a last-eight place with a point (or if Russia fail to win) after following up a 0-0 draw against Germany with a 2-0 victory over Russia.
- Italy became the first team to exit the competition on Friday after following up a 2-1 loss to Russia with a defeat by the same scoreline against Germany.
- Until this tournament neither of these teams had ever failed to reach the last eight since the first edition in 1984. Sweden can still maintain their record.
- This is the third straight group stage where Sweden have met Italy.
- Sweden won their 2013 meeting 3-1 and, prior to that, 1-0 in 2009; each time they finished top of the group and Italy second.
- Their first competitive encounters came in the semi-final of the inaugural European tournament of 1984, Pia Sundhage playing both legs as Sweden won 3-2 away and 2-1 at home.
- In all, Sundhage played nine internationals against Italy without defeat.
- Sweden have played 11 competitive games against Italy, winning eight and losing one.
- Including friendlies, the countries have faced off 18 times, with 13 Swedish victories, two Italian and three draws. Sweden lead the goal count 36-10.
- The Swedes are on a five-match winning streak against Italy going back to June 2004, when the Azzurre won a home UEFA Women's EURO qualifier 2-1.

Team facts

Sweden

EURO 2013: Semi-finals

EURO best: Winners (1984)

How they qualified: Group 4 winners, W7 D0 L1 F22 A3 Pts2

Coach: Pia Sundhage

One to watch: Lotta Schelin (forward, Rosengård)

What to watch out for: The Swedes are often polar opposites to Norway, tipped heavily before a tournament only to fall short (hence surprise losses to their neighbours in the 2005 semis and 2009 quarters). But following a 2011 World Cup bronze, they have found a new toughness since Sundhage returned from the United States to take charge prior to the 2013 finals on home soil.

Only an epic 1-0 semi-final defeat by Germany denied them a dream decider against Norway, and Sweden took a further step forward when they ground down both the US and Brazil to make the 2016 Olympic final. Though Germany took gold, Sweden had shown their ability to steer a knockout course, though losing their last qualifier in Denmark cost them top seeding in the EURO draw.

Italy

EURO 2013: Quarter-finals

EURO best: Runners-up (1993, 1997)

How they qualified: Group 6 runners-up, W6 D0 L2 F26 A8 Pts18

Coach: Antonio Cabrini

One to watch: Melania Gabbiadini (forward, Verona)

What to watch out for: Only Norway can match Italy's record of qualifying for 11 final tournaments and the Azzurre have never gone out before the last eight of any EURO – but they will not travel to the Netherlands among the favourites. While the Italians lost narrowly to Germany in the 2009 and 2013 quarter-finals, a qualifying campaign in which they were beaten home and away by Switzerland is more representative of their actual form – especially since long-standing forward Patrizia Panico switched to coaching the men's Under-16s.

That is not to undervalue a team with Sara Gama, Alice Parisi and Melania Gabbiadini (sister of Napoli's Manolo), and despite worrying form in some friendlies they did beat Russia 3-0 in Brazil in December.
